

Dr. Nouf Sahal Alharbi holds a Ph.D. in Health Care Management and Policy from the University of Surrey, UK, a Master's degree in Health and Hospital Management with First-Class Honors from King Saud University, and a Bachelor's degree in Health Services Administration from King Saud University. Currently She is an Associate Professor at the College of Business Administration (since 2020), Dr. Nouf also worked as a Project Manager at the Saudi Health Council, where she managed the Diabetes National Registry project (2021–2022), and was a consultant to the Health Holding Company (2020–2021). She is also a member of the National Nutrition Committee in the Public Health Authority.

Her academic involvement includes editorial roles at INQUIRY: The Journal of Health Care Organization, Provision, and Financing and the Saudi Journal of Health System Research. With several publications in health policy, health information management, and health insurance, she also leads research initiatives on environmental waste management policies in healthcare. Throughout her studies in the UK, she received numerous honors from the Saudi Cultural Attaché and was also recognized by the Saudi Ambassador to the UK for her academic and research excellence.